City dumps garbage on private collector

By ELLIS CUEVAS

The Bay St. Louis Council this week approved a contract with Gulf Coast Waste and Disposl, Inc. to take over garbage collections within the city limits.

Gulf Coast Waste president Paul Montjoy met with the Council Tuesday for the acceptance and signing of the contract which is to take effect Monday, March 12.

"If Gulf Coast does the same fine job in Bay St. Louis as they do in Diamondhead, all our residents should be happy," stated Mayor Larry Bennett.

Gulf Coast Waste will retain four of the six employees now working for the city on garbage pickup, according to Montjoy and Mayor Bennett. The other two will continue to work on trash collections which the City will continue to maintain, according to the two.

Before acceptance of the contract with Gulf Coast Waste, Council President James Thriffley read a letter from Robert L. Genin Jr., local attorney, who reviewed the contract at the city's requested by an independent attorney was because Council's attorney Joseph Gex is affiliated with Gulf Coast and wanted to suggest an unbiased opinion on the contract.

Genin's letter stated;

...After reviewing the final contract, it is my opinion that this contract is fair and equitable and correctly depicts the intentions of the parties as I understand those intentions.

"...I had one serious question regarding the ability of the City to contract without advertising for public bids. However, I have been assured by Mr. Joseph Gex, city attorney, that you have obtained an Attorney General's ruling stating that this procedure is proper..."

Board attorney Joseph Gex said the City of Biloxi which changes its garbage collection to a private concern had received a similar opinion from the Attorney General's office, Gex added he has a copy of that opinion.

As part of the contract, the City was offered a bid by Gulf Coast for the old garbage trucks owned by the City.

When the trucks were checked over by Montjoy, two were operating and one was not. Before the Council meeting, both trucks stopped running and an estimate of 1,500 was given as the amount needed for repairs on one vehicle.

Montjoy said due to this fact he would have to subtract $1,000 from his bid price turned in earlier.

There was some discussion about the possibility of receiving public bids on the old trucks until Mayor Bennett informed the Council all of them had been run more than 200,00 miles. Council was then anxious to open Gulf Coast Waste's bid.

Montjoy's bid was $9,000 minus the $1,000 which the Council was happy to receive. One Councilman said, 'Let's accept it in a hurry.'

Oyster dredge season closed by Commission

Tonging on Waveland and Pass Christian oyster reefs will continue through April 30, but all oyster dredging in Mississippi waters has been closed by the state's Marine Conservation Commission.

The dreding season was closed effective at sunset Tuesday in action taken by the commission Monday.

The commission acted on an emergency basis after hearing a report from its director, Dr. Richard L. Leard, that the average oyster catch is 4.4 barrels per boat per day at the two dredging reefs still open, Henderson Point and Telegraph.

The average oyster catch is too small to enable the fishermen to make much money, the commissioners said, and it distrubs the growth of oysters that would be ready to catch in future seasons.

Unaffected by the closings are the oyster tonging reefs, which will remain open no later than April 30. The open tonging reefs are Pass Christian, Waveland, Bangs Lake and Bayou Cumbest.

A newly created tonging reef about three-fourths mile northwest of Round Island probably will be ready to open next month, Leard's said after the meeting.

Upon Leard's recommendation, the commission voted to endorse wastewater treatment facilities proposed by the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission for the Gulf Coast.

The facilities would include three land treatment sites and five mechanical treatment plants.

Governor signs sales tax bill

By ELLIS CUEVAS

State Representative J.P. Compretta last Wednesday advised Bay St. Louis Mayor Larry Bennett the city's half-cent sales tax bill guided through the Legislature by Compretta and State Senator Martin Smith has been signed into law by the governor.

The local and private bill calls for an additional half-cent sales tax increase if the City loses the appeal in the Jimmy Ray Warner case.

Mayor Bennett emphasized that the sales tax is not in effect at this time. "I hope we will win the appeal and not have to pay the judgement, but the Council requested Senator Smith and Representative Compretta to submit local and private bills to give us a means of paying if it becomes necessary."

The Council recently estimated it will take 2-5 years with the new sales tax receipts to pay the judgement against the City if the appeal is lost.

Warner, a New Orleans teenager, was paralyzed in [illegible] when he dove off a city pier into shallow water in the Mississippi Sound.

A court awarded his family $750,000 three months after he died, but the figure was reduced in federal court.

Bay St. Louis is undergoing a special bankruptcy proceeding after a U.S. District Court awarded the estate of Warner $375,000 judgement.

Attorney's fees and interest on the judgement have increased the city's obligations in the case to $461,[illegible]

Board meeting hour stirs court, union controversy

By RICH ADAMS

The Hancock County School Board Monday rejected a proposal to conduct all of its meetings at night, leaving itself open to court action by the county American Federation of Teachers.

Last year the board was forced by a court order to conduct all regular monthly meetings at night so the meetings would be convenient for teachers and the public to attend.

On Jan 5, the board approved a change in its regular 6 p.m. monthly meeting time, slating the meetings for 9 a.m. every month.

The action drew an immediate threat of legal action from the Hancock County local of the American Federation of Teachers, which said the change was in violation of the 1978 court order.

AFT representative Sandra Gray said in January the board's action was in violation of the earlier court order, and promised to take legal action against the board.

At Monday's meeting, Board Member Oris Ladner's motion to conduct all school board meetings in the evening, seconded by Louie Ladner, was defeated when Board President Woodrow Ladner and Board Members Monvel Cuevas and Johnny Banks voted against the issue.

Following the meeting, Woodrow Ladner said the change to night meetings would "produce a hardship" for some board members.

"Oris tried to change all meetings to the evening...this would have produced a hardship for Johnny Banks and Monvel Cuevas," the board president said.

Banks works an evening shift at a Jackson County shipyard, and Cuevas' employment involves considerable travel.

Woodrow Ladner said he thinks the board will be able to "work something out" at the next board meeting.

"We will work something out so the greatest number of board members can be here as often as possible," Ladner said.

Ladner said he does not know if all meetings, including recess meetings, must be conducted at night in order to comply with the court order.

"I don't know...things worked out good for the day meetings...we kept the public and board members pretty much in mind," the board president said.

"We have to get it so the board members can attend. We want board meetings to benefit everybody," he added.

Ms. Gray declined to comment Monday on action her union may take against the board's most recent refusal

Archaeological dig set at Port Bienville Park

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

A Biloxi archaeologist is scheduled to search for Indian relics possibly dating back to 1500 B.C. on a 25-acre site at the Port Bienville Industrial Park within the next two weeks.

Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission Director Wilson Webre said Dale Greenwell has been hired at an approximate cost of $600 to conduct the survey.

An advisory council of the Mississippi Department of Archives and History recommended the survey.

The advisory council on historic preservation of historic and cultural properties recommended the survey, "Because our statewide survey files indicate the presence of numerous archaeological sites in the vicinity of the project."

The 'project' refers to a proposed docking facility which the Port and Harbor Commission intends to construct at Port Bienville with the aid of U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

The 60-foot wide, 400-foot long proposed docking facility will be used primarily by Borg-Warner, a company which makes a base product used in plastics.

The company has announced intentions of locating at the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

The State Department of Archives and History became aware the docking facility was going to be constructed near the 25-acre site through an advertisement announcing the intent to construct a docking facility.

"Whenever the Corps is involved in a project they advertise the project and allow a certain amount of time for the public to report objections to the project," said Webre.

If objections are substantial a permit is not granted for construction.

The commission director explained, "The survey is only a precautionary measure to prevent future delay of industrial development."

"We have the latitude to continue without the survey, but it's better that we do it now—because if something of historic significance is located there later it might cause a greater problem to development at the industrial park."

Mississippi Department of Archives and History archaeologist Sam McGahey said the 25-acre site is called the Claiborne Site.

"A prehistoric culture of Indians lived there," said McGahey.

"Actually, the entire industrial park is rich in archaeological remains," he continued.

"Two of the most significant sites in the entire southeastern United States were destroyed at the industrial complex previously," lamented the archaeologist.

The industrial park is located in the extreme southwestern part of Hancock County.

The Red Cross-- A Good Neighbor

The Red Cross has been in Hancock County for longer than most people can remember.

Through the years, people have always assumed the Red Cross would be there when needed with its disaster assistance and service to military families and veterans.

It is difficult to realize the number of people who have been helped or the number of accidents and deaths that have been prevented by American Red Cross training in first aid, water safety, nursing and health, cardiopulmonary resuscitation or the blood provided by thousands of volunteer donors.

Each year the American Red Cross Regional Blood Centers collect more than 200,000 units of whole blood in Mississippi and Alabama and, through modern and sophisticated blood-banking techniques, some 260,000 patients have benefited from these donations.

During the past ten years, more than $23 million has been provided in assistance to disaster victims here in Mississippi.

American Red Cross is 98 years old and is supported entirely by volunteers and voluntary contributions.

This organization, its services to local people, has been a good neighbor in Hancock County. We can be good neighbors in return by joining the Red Cross and supporting its work here and around the world.

Waveland asks piling removal

By LESLIE WILLIAMS

Waveland's Board of Alderman agreed at its regular meeting Tuesday to send a cordial letter asking Hancock County Board of Supervisors to "remove derelict pilings from Waveland beaches."

The Board noted the supervisors use their discretion in accomplishing the task.

Ward Two Alderman Jack Toomey moved the letter be sent and Ward Three Alderman Louie Smolensky seconded the motion. Unanimous approval followed.

"I think the supervisors know we are concerned about the matter, but there is only so much money available," said Waveland Mayor John Longo.

"This Board of Supervisors has worked better with us than any Board in the past," Longo continued.

Aldermen also suggested resurfacing Waveland beach road and increasing beach sand area before removing the pilings.

Toomey dissented saying, "I think removal of the pilings should be first priority, because the pilings are dangerous."

In other business, the Board authorized Lewis-Eaton Partnership, an engineering firm, to proceed with the Middletown project, which calls for renovation of homes and streets in the area.

In an effort to determine whether Magnolia Lane is a public or private road belonging to Raymond Ladner, the Board advised its attorney, Lucien Gex, to write Mrs. Howard Perrilliat and realtor Nell Frisbie advising them, "If there is any suit to be brought about to determine to whom the road belongs, then the City advises Mrs. Perrilliat to bring the suit."

Ms. Perrilliat owns approximately 15 lots on Magnolia Lane.

"It's obvious to me Magnolia Lane is a public road," remarked Gex.

The mayor suggested the matter be negotiated between Perrilliat and Ladner before court action is necessary.

The Board also waived a $175 sewerage installation fee for Mrs. Charles Westhoff on the basis that when she bought the home she assumed there was sewerage on the property.

Toomey mentioned Aaron Brinskie presented a similar situation to the Board before, but the Board denied waiving Brinskie's fee.

The Board appointed Barbara Rappold to investigate the Brinskie matter.

Smolensky suggested a street light be placed on Pompano Road and announced he commends the Waveland Fire Department for quickly extinguishing a fire at the home of one of the residents in his Ward.

Longo said the request for the street light would be combined with other requests for street lights and be considered by the Board at a later date.

will be supervisor for Montjoy's firm. The company's office is open from 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Their phone number is 467-3376.

Montjoy mentioned to the Council that he didn't originally plan to start this soon on the contract, but "Because of the emergency created by the breakdown of all City garbage equipment his firm would make the contract effective on Monday, March 12."

"There are no changes anticipated in the schedule for residential service. Changes in Commercial service to comply with the new city ordinance will be announced after we have had an opportunity to operate the system for several weeks," stated Montjoy.

The new ordinance will go into effect on March 20.

Gulf Coast Waste will keep the public informed on the summary of the new ordinance key points by publishing them in the newspaper, aaccording to Montjoy.

Mayor Bennett said, "In making this decision to contract garbage collection, the Council and I put a lot of work. We were in need of a minimum of three vehicles, and the estimated cost for two garbage trucks would be $90,000, which the City doesn't have."

"Residents with trash problems will continue to call City Hall at 467-9092," Mayor Bennett emphasized Wednesday.

"There will be no immediate increases in garbage fees, but down the line we will have higher costs sooner or later. There probably would have been increases necessary now if we hadn't contracted out the garbage collection. We would have had to make some severe increases," the mayor said.

King and Queen acknowledge aid

Dear Sir:

We would like to express our heartfelt thanks, through your newspaper, to the many people who helped Myrt and I to become king and queen of Our Lady of the Gulf's 1979 Carnival Ball.

Without the dedication and hard work of our team, many parishioners, and good friends throughout the community, we would not have been successful in achieving our goal of obtaining funds to support the parish and schools of Our Lady of the Gulf.

Our team raised $15,615 during the short fund-raising period which shows a unity of christian spirit and effort by many people.

Myrt and I could not have done it by ourselves. Even though we had only 11 scheduled days for events, they were just the culmination of many hours of planning, organizing, getting hundreds of cakes baked by many people for Cake Sales, obtaining and preparing materials for our rummage, po-boy, salad bars, dinners, smorgasbord, auction, teen-dances, carnival fair and all other events held by us.

All these activities required help, participation, and teamwork.

We especially want to thank our great team: Mr. and Mrs. Charles Carter, Mr. and Mrs. James Ryan, Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Bourgeois, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Bourg, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dickenson, Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Gleber, Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Haas, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Marengo, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Gilmore, Mr. and Mrs. Rillens Lee, and Mrs. Mary Monti.

Also, we extend a special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Gene Monti and Mr. and Mrs. Glynn Bannister.

For all this Myrt and I offer our special thanks to our many helpers, those who hosted our fund-raising events, those who attended these events, and all those of you who gave and gave and gave.

God bless all of you!

Airman's message to his mother

To Ruth Goins
Bay St. Louis

Well, here it is "Valentine's Day" and if I am totally honest with myself. My only Valentine is my ever-so-faithful loving mother.

My mother who has throughout the past 19 years done everything possible to my benefit.

Although I have always been grateful to her, I have almost never said "Thank You".

But due to the holiday, and the fact that I am going out on my own I aant to bring it to her attention that my appreciation is unmeasurable.

So, I am now officially saying 'tahnks'. My love towards my dear mother is far too great to express.

NEW SIGNALS INSTALLED–Mississippi Highway Signal Technicians Ernest McAlpin, right, and Howard Westbrook install new signals at the intersection of US-90 and Highway 603 Tuesday. The signals were requested by the South Hancock Kiwanis Club who met with Robert Mosley, highway engineer, in June of 1978. The new lights include an arrow for left turns off US-90. Don Favre, Kiwanis, said yesterday his club will be working on the Waveland Avenue crossing next. Chuck Breath, past president of Kiwanis, viewed the new signals being installed while Waveland police directed traffic. (Staff photo-Ellis Cuevas)

Jehovah's Witnesses open weekend meet at Coliseum

Jehovah's Witnesses will convene a two-day seminar at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum in Biloxi, Saturday and Sunday.

John Smith, a minister of Jehovah's Witnesses here, said 70 delegates from the Bay St. Louis area will participate in the convention.

"Keeping Clean and Zealous for Fine Works" is the theme of the meeting, Smith explained.

"As morals and behavior patterns steadily deteriorate in the world there is more and more pressure on Christians to conform to the Bible's high standards of conduct. This program will include sound counsel to young and old on how to recognize dangerous trends and how to avoid them," Smith said.

The convention, which begins at 9:55 a.m. Saturday is expected to attract some 2,200 persons from 20 congregations in South Mississippi. This will be the third Witness convention in the Coliseum. A much larger "District Convention" will be held there July 12-15 bringing several thousand Witnesses from South Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana.

Highlight of this week's meeting will be a public lecture at 2 p.m. on Sunday entitled "A Cleansed Earth - Will You Live To See It?)

This lecture will be delivered by D.B. Thompson, a traveling representative of Jehovah's Witnesses and principal speaker for the convention.

"We especially invite all interested to attend this lecture," Smith said. "It highlights one of our principal beliefs - that God will fulfill his promise to cleanse the earth of all wickedness and make it a paradise for righteous men and women to enjoy."

The entire assembly is free and open to the public.

Seal reports Hancock Bank 78 earnings up 17 percent

Leo W. Seal Jr. of Bay St. Louis, president of Hancock Bank, presided over the bank's 80th annual stockholders meeting last week in the lobby of the Gulfport bank.

In his report to stockholders, Seal said 1978 was " a very satisfactory year for the bank."

He reported earnings after taxes of $2,649,777, up 17 percent, which enabled the bank to increase dividends to $2.15 per share and put $2 million in a surplus account.

He said that total deposits were up more than $23 million, while loans increased $14 million over 1977.

Seal noted economic activity on the Coast during 1978 was one of the most impressive that has ever been experienced.

Among developments affecting the economy during the year, he cited a fine tourist season, increased retail sales and robust residential construction.

He pointed out that industrial expansion and construction accounted for major economic gains throughout South Mississippi, and especially among coastal counties.

Seal explained that construction of a new bank building, which had been delayed pending final approval of an Urban Development Action grant to the City of Gulfport for a 400-plus car parking garage and for other amenities to improve the Harbor Square area in downtown Gulfport, will soon get under way.

He then reported that test pilings are scheduled to be driven beginning March 19.

Goerge A. SChloegel, executive vice president, and Andy J. Alphonso, vice president, both involved with the construction program, gave a slide presentation highlighting the proposed tower and showing views of typical floor plans for retail facilities, banking quarters and upper level office arrangements.

In action taken at the meeting, stockholders voted to amend the bank's by-laws in order to establish maximum age limitations for election to the board and advisory board of directors.

Also acted on by stockholders was the election of members of the board and advisory directors.

Those elected are George E. Estes, R.P. Fant, H.H. Jones, T.W. Milner, Jr., Dr. H.C. Moody, Jr., Leo W. Seal, Jr., and Donald E. Sutter.

Advisory directors elected are Robert A. Allen, Joseph F. Boardman, Jr., Haze French, Charles H. Johnson, L.A. Koenenn Jr., Bazil Noble Jr., C. Hooker Quick, Robert M. Riemann, H.A. Smith, Dr. C.D. Taylor Jr., A.J. Watson Jr., and Roland Weeks Jr.

Researchers plan 1980 Bay pollutant analysis

By RICH ADAMS

Investigators from the Gulf Coast Research Laboratory in Ocean Springs are initiating a pollutant study of the Mississippi Sound and adjacent river systems, with extensive studies in the St. Louis Bay planned for 1980.

Chief investigators in the study, Dr. Thomas F. Lytle and his wife Dr. Julia Sever Lytle, said they hope the work will help document quality of coastal waters and the forms and manners in which pollutants are transported.

Lytle said this week he will require at least three years of work to complete the study.

The work in 1979 will be concentrated on the eastern Mississippi Sound and include the Pascagoula-Escatawpa River system, Lytle said.

"We are concentrating this early study on the Pascagoula River, where there is more industrialization and where we feel a study is most important," Lytle said Monday.

"Right now we don't have the funds to begin work in the St. Louis Bay," he added.

The first year of work is being funded by a $73,488 Sea Grant program grant jointly adminstered, partially by the Mississippi-Alabama Sea Grant Consortium for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and partially by the state.

Lytle said he and his wife plan to start studies from where earlier and current surveys of the St. Louis Bay leave off.

"The most pressing need we find is to study organic pollutants," the distaff Dr. Lytle said.

"Oil is one of the most important organic pollutants. We will look at hydrocarbons, and in particular the components of oil that are known to cause cancer," she added.

"Municipal and industrial effluents may add petroleum-type pollutants to the environment. Sewage and residential runoff contain a high percentage of oil derived from crankcase, lubricating, and cooking oils, asphalt and other sources that all eventually find their way into our estuaries," she said.

"While there have been some regional studies of the chemistry of coastal waters, such as those in Bay St. Louis and in the Back Bay of Biloxi, we don't really have an overall picture of the pollution problems we have in the waters of Mississippi," Thomas Lytle said.

Lytle said the GCRL is presently conducting studies of the water in the St. Louis Bay to establish a base line against which future effects of the DuPont plant on Bay waters can be compared.

Lytle said he hopes more money and also more research groups will join in the extensive project.

"We are just laying the groundwork," the researcher said.

Beginning in the Pascagoula-Escatawpa River in April, cores will be drilled 20-feet into the bottom, chilled with dry ice, and transported to the laboratory in Ocean Springs.

Sediments deposited over a period of hundreds of years contain a record of man's activities extending far into the past, Julia Lytle said.

"We're not just interested in a history lesson in pollution," Ms. Lytle said.

"We will want to learn all about the accumulation of pollutants in the sediments. Many pollutants tend to concentrate in the sediments and may be released at some later time either by dredging operations or flooding conditions," she added.

According to the scientists, these studies should ultimately result in the kind of data and information that can be utilized by various coastal management agencies in selecting locations appropriate to be designated for recreational, industrial, and residential development.

Such water quality data will also prove useful to those responsible for making fisheries management and regulatory decisions, the researchers added.

to comply with the court order.

In other action at Monday's meeting, the board accepted bids totalling $37,351 on leases of 16th Section oil land.

Three bids were received on 14 tracts advertised, and after some discussion, the board accepted all three.

The General Crude Oil Company, a subsidiary of the General Paper Company, bid $20,000 on land in the NSTL buffer zone.

Saga Petrolium bid on two sections, $16,000 for a 639 acre tract and $1,351 on a 54 acre area.

Superintendent Terry Randolph asked the board to hold off on approval of the bids, suggesting that higher competitive bids might be offered if the board refused to accept the bids opened Monday.

Board Attorney Joseph Gex said General Crude Oil would be the only company bidding for the buffer zone area because all the land surrounding that tract was owned by General Paper Company.

Gex said the board could pass on the Saga Petroleum bid, but added the bids received Monday would be printed in newspapers and would probably eliminate competitive bids.

The board unanimously approved the bids on the land.

Also at Monday's meeting, the board approved a conditional purchase of four 66-passenger school buses and one 20-passenger minibus.

The board required Randolph to produce a breakdown of where the funds to purchase the buses would originate, adding it would not approve the purchase if any 16th Section oil lease money were used.

Monvel Cuevas asked if the transportation department can afford the new buses.

"If we spend more than we have, we will just have to do without something else," Randolph replied.

"We will have to get state money to buy the buses... transportation has never been able to buy new buses outright," he continued.

"We may have to borrow money from 16th Section land lease monies," he added.

Louie Ladner suggested the board save time and advertise for the buses in order to get the buses in September for the start of the new school year.

Ladner offered to pay for the advertising himself if the board would approve to advertise for bids.

Banks voiced opposition to using any of the $811,000 in 16th Section oil lease money earmarked for classroom construction to purchase the vehicles.

Woodrow Ladner suggested the board approve the advertising, but stipulated that Randolph must produce a breakdown of funds used to purchase the buses.

"We will aprove to advertise, but I will not approve spending one red cent of the $811,000 in oil land lease money," Ladner said.

The issue was approved by a 3-2 vote, with Cuevas and Banks voting against the purchase.

In another issue which was discussed in length among board members, the school calendar was extended two days in order to allow students and teachers a week off for the spring holidays, which runs from Mar. 12-16.

Randolph told the board that teachers and students have told him they would rather make up the two days at the end of the school year than return to school for a Thursday and Friday next week, as originally slated.

Woodrow Ladner complained that the board was changing the calendar too often.

"Every time we turn around, you are changing the blasted thing," Ladner said.

He contended that the extension at the end of the year would prevent graduating seniors from an early chance at the summer job market.

Randolph said seniors will graduate two weeks earlier than school is officially ended, and added the two days will not effect final testing dates.

The issue was passed, with Cuevas and Banks again voting against the issue.

The board Monday denied the Clermont Harbor Civic Organization use of the Youth Center, an old school in Clermont Harbor most recently used for the county's special education program, each third Saturday of every month until the organization informs the board what it plans to do in the building.

Randolph said the Clermont Harbor group never specified what it intends to use the Youth Center for, and added the organizaton must understand that if the school system can lease the building to someone else, the civic organization will have to work out other terms with the board.

Cuevas said a maintenance contract must be worked out with the group.

"They probably have good intentions, but who will keep the building clean? We must enter a maintenance contract with them," Cuevas said.

Woodrow Ladner said the building "could be destroyed" if proper supervision was not arranged with the civic group.

The issue was defeated, with Oris Ladner the only member voting in favor of the motion.

In other action, Hancock North Central Elementary Principal Harlan Hill said statewide tests will be administered to fourth, fifth, sixth, and eighth graders in late March and early April.

He said the tests are "assessment-type tests," which will show areas in which the school must be improved.

The board then retreated into executive session to conduct a student expulsion hearing.

Sailor theme prevails at Pass Carnival Ball

By SALLY JAMES
Asm. Publicist

Theme of the ball, "Sailors Through the Ages," was depicted by use of larger-than-life murals of world famous sailors. On the stage, which held the double throne of white, red and gold leaf, was a large ship's wheel done in brilliant red and gold.

Covering the stage was lush green carpet. The entrances, both to the stage and from where the court was to be presented, was decorated to represent wharves along a quay, using pilings, hemp, multi-colored fish nets; gold and silver fish and sea gulls.

Above the stage hung the royal flags, which are one of the gifts of the Association to its king and queen each years.

A large mobile hung from the center of the ballroom ceiling, with the four points of the compass done in colorful three dimension.

A small sailboat complete with sail was used to conceal the lighting used at the ball. The tables held floral arrangements of sea coral and spring flowers.

Master of Ceremonies Billy McDonald's first introduction was that of the ball captain whose identity is kept secret.

Following the captain were 1978's king George (Rusty) Trowbridge and his queen, Mrs. Shirley Sessum. The introductions of this year's court took place once they were seated on stage.

The ladies of the court wore the traditional white ball gowns and carried arrangements of sea coral fans decorated with cymbidium orchids in shades of green and lavender. Gold doubloon necklaces were court favors.

Members of the Court included: Mrs. John Young escorted by Mr. Young;

Mrs. Orville Ferrell escorted by Mr. Ferrell;

Mrs. Everett Necaise escorted by Mr. Necaise;

Mrs. Paul Wayne Ladner escorted by Mr. Ladner;

Ms. Verna Wilkerson escorted by Mr. Dave Zeitfuss; and Mrs. Jerlon Ladner escorted by Mr. C.J. Saucier.

Also, Ms. Katherine Tillman escorted by Mr. Thomas D. Adams III; Mrs. Dwayne Mallini escorted by Mr. Mallini; Mrs. Chrlaes Darrell escorted by Mr. Joseph Guiffria; Mrs. Laura Creel Nelson escorted by Mr. Cecil B. Creel Jr.; Mrs. Ella Clayre Huffman escorted by Mr. Russel Huber; Mrs. Daniel Cole escorted by Mr. Cole; and Mrs. Julie Szymanski McAdams escorted by Mr. John Stewart.

After the court assumed their places on either side of the stage, Mr. McDonald introduced the 1979 Grand Duke August Marie and Grand Duchess Mrs. Maureen Necaise Hager who were greeted by the crowd.

Mrs. Hager wore a white designers ball gown and carried yellow roses.

King Christian the 46th entered to fanfare and a standing ovation from his loyal subjects, who overflowed the ballroom.

He wore the traditional "Crown of Christian" and carried the matching scepter. The tunic of his costume was of silver and gold reembroidered on white brocade, with deep bell sleeves. The front of the tunic was heavily encrusted with bands of seed pearls, rhinestones and silver braid. It was worn over a heavy satin blouse, whose cuffs and neck were lavishly edged in lace.

The costumes pantaloons matched the tunic and were fastened at the knee with jeweled buckles.

His majesty's mantle was of deep purple velvet edged in ermine. The decorations on the back were done in jewels and silver braid.

Queen Christiana entered escorted by her husband, Mr. John Peranich, and the ball captain.

She was attired in a lovely gown of re-embroidered lace, made on princess-lines, featuring a scalloped neckline. The panels on the gown were heavily encrusted with pearls and semi-precious jewels.

She wore the long mantle which matched that of the king. The Medecci colar which framed her face was made of imported lace decorated with pearls and irridescents.

She wore Christiana's crown and carried the matching scepter adorned with an orchid. The queen's trainbearers were Rebecca Parker, Aimee Mallini, Jackie Erwin and Rebecca Dickinson.

After the Queen made her way onto the throne, the royal pair saluted their subjects.

Following a skit "Who's On First", by Dan Griffon and Ted Steckmann, presentation of the gifts to the royalty was made by the President of St. Paul's Carnival Association, Sam J. Armato.

Before the grand march, the visiting royalty from Pass Christian's sister cities of Long Beach and Bay St. Louis were introduced.

From Long Beach, King Scott, Louis Elias, could not be present. Queen Rosalie, Mrs. Rose France was escorted by Sonny Wilson Jr.

Presented also were the Grand Duke and Duchess, Lanny Ladner and Shirley Joffrion.

From Bay St. Louis, King Michael Haas and his wife and queen Mrs. Myrt Haas, Grand Duke and Duchess were Billy Sills and Mrs. Madelyn Prendergast.

Ross Yockey, and Mrs. Jackson Balch; ball arrangements and seating, Mrs. John Simpson and Tom Anthony Jr.; floor committee, Eaton A. Lang; door committee, Mrs. Mae VanCourt and Mrs. Sam Armato; program, Mrs. Lillian C Dillard; doubloons, Mrs. Edward O. Reid and Emmett McKeough.

KING JOE PETTA

QUEEN LOUISE BANKS
"KREWE OF SENIORS"

The Seniors of Hancock County are to be congratulated on success of the Krewe of Seniors Ball at American Legion Post No. 139, Bay St. Louis, Friday, Feb. 23.

There never was a more jovial group of celebrants than our Seniors.

Staff members from RSVP and the Day Care Center did a magnificent job decorating the hall for this festive occassion.

Costumes, being the order of the day, were certainly in gay profusion.

Clown Jim Hoda, recreation director, started the Grand March by presenting each costumed Senior with a number.

Judges were presented with the very difficult task of choosing a Queen and King of the Ball.

There were gorillas, werewolfs, Indians, Hula dancers, Spanish madiens, farmerettes, Chinese Mandarian, and yes, even a rabbit.

The judges - from the Gulfport office of Southern Mississsippi Planning & Development District - Ms. Eunice Travis, aging programs administrator; Judy Pennington, assistant personnal director and Janice Williams, area co-ordinator of nutrition, at last decided the two most outstanding to be King Joe Petta and his Queen, Louise Banks.

The judges chose courtiers Pere Cabibi, Lucille and Shorty Reese, Julia Leddy, Esther Oschmann, Georgianna Diebold, Ethel Dormain, and Harwood Paugh.

The king and queen and the royal court once enthroned were presented gifts. King Joe Petta received a $25 Savings Bond for the Hancock Bank. Queen Louise Banks got a $25 Savings Bond from Gulf National Bank.

Peoples Federal Savings and Loan Association presented a $15 savings account as door-prize, won by Rosina Deal.

Mrs. Gavigney from Security Savings and Loan Association donated a floral arrangement, won by Pere Cabibi.

The royal entertainers, Seniors Too Orchestra, from Harrison County RSVP Volunteers - Dick Austin, leader; Mark Ritter on alto and tenor sax; Randall McDonnell, on piano; Loretta Ritter on electric bass guitar; Mercedees Mobley on cocktail drums; and C. F. Galbott, drummer, an exceptionally fine group of musicians - entertained with nostalgic tunes of 20's, 30's and 40's.

Everyone was dancing to "Hello Dolly," "Bill Bailey," "Mockingbird Hill," and "St. Louis Blues" among the favorites.

The Grand March was participated in by all present, and believe me, "Those Saints Really Did Go Marching In."

It is needless to say there was a unanimous vote for this Ball to be an annual event.

BIRTHDAY PARTY

Monday, Feb. 26, Seniors congratulated and sang "Happy Birthday" to all of the February honorees - Julia Leddy, Gertrude Phaugh, Roland Galivan, Hazel Buckley, and Emma Moran.

A "Special Birthday Prize" of two chicken dinners donated by Buddy Morrow of Danny's Fried Chicken was won by Hazel Buckley.

Scafidi's Wheel Inn Restaurant donated a door-prize of dinner for two, won by Ehtel Dormain.

Routines included "American Bandstand", "Wipe Out," "Grease," "Music-Music-Music," "Brick House," "Country Boy," and "Acrobatic."

The finale was the presentation of carnival beads, and throws by the dancers to everyone present.

Thank you, Piccolo, and your talented dancers, for an afternoon of wonderful entertainment.

Birthday cakes were donated by Peoples Federal Savings & Loan Association.

RSVP Volunteers for this event were Cecil Galivan, Jewell Stratton, Eva Ruhr, Nina Garner, Lucy Bradt, Edith Chevis, Maggie Dambrino, Julia Leddy, Jennie Taconi, Bernice Scafidi, Catherine Galivan, and Evelyn Spence.

My personal thanks to everyone who helped to make our February Birthday Party a success.

BAY ST. LOUIS SOCIAL HOUR

All Seniors 60 years of age or over are cordially invited to participate in the Games Session.

If you have not signed up for our recreation programs, you will have the opportunity when you attend this event at the Senior Center, Old Spanish Trail, March 12 at 1:30 p.m.

Those of us who have a car could save fuel and be patriotic by forming a car pool and bringing someone.

There will be plenty of nice prizes, plus a great door-prize, plus delicious home-baked cakes and coffee. SO COME ON DOWN!

BREAKFAST

The Seniors' Day Care Center, Old Spanish Trail, will sponsor a breakfast of bacon and eggs, grits, toast, and banana fritters Thursday, March 15 from 7:30 to 9:30 a.m.

All Seniors over 60, $1; all other adults, $1.25; and children, 75 cents.

The money collected from this breakfast will help to defray expenses for the Special Events that take place thoughout the year.

So come on Hancock County, let's all support this endeavor and enjoy some delicious food at the same time.

SINGING SENIORS

This fine group of RSVP Volunteers has been kept quite busy.

They participated in the Simpson County Recognition Banquet for the Volunteers in that county.

They sing every Wednesday afternoon for the residents of the Gulfview Haven Nursing Home. On Friday, March 2, they sang at the World Day of Prayer at the First Missionary Baptist Church, Sycamore and Third Streets, Bay St. Louis.

They were under the direction of Mrs. Grace Pollade, pro-tem, in the absence of their regular director, Charles Johnson, who was driving another group of Seniors to Jackson.

This fine group receive accolades where ever they perform.

I would like to take this opportunity to personally thank Dr. Lawrence Collins Sr., pastor, and members of First Missionary Baptist Church and all other participating church members for the wonderful reception they gave to me for my participation.

Mrs. Ben Hille, Jr., thank you for the wonderful accompainment that you provided.

A special thank you to Chairlady Mrs. Christmas for affording me the pleasure of being a part of this beautiful program.

RETIRED SENIOR VOLUNTEER PROGRAM

Friday, March 2, at 6:30 a.m. two chartered buses departed from the Center for Jackson.

The 75 seniors, and staff members of RSVP and Day Care Center were met by their official hostess, Ms. Watkins.

After a cordial greeting, she escorted everyone to the State Senate where they were greeted by Senator Martin Smith who introduced the entire group to the Senate.

Their next stop being the House of Representatives, they were greeted by and introduced to the House Members by Rep. J. P. Compretta.

The group was introduced to and greeted by Governor Cliff Finch, who posed for a group picture.

After a delicious lunch, they were taken on a tour of the Governor's Mansion. They arrived back at the Center in Bay St. Louis at 6:30 p.m.

A very tired but happy group disembarked.

The Seniors who took the excursion have nothing but praise for Theresa James, RSVP director for Hancock County and her staff who coordinated the entire excursion.

Congratulations, Theresa, for a very successful and fine job as usual.

HERE & THERE

Roland and Catherine Galivan, the proud parents (and rightly so) of W. T. "Buddy" Galivan who was recnetly promoted to postmaster of Franklinton, Louisisna.

He was elected from a field of 15 applicants.

Buddy Galivan was supervisor of mail for 16 years at the main postoffice of New Orleans, quite an accomplishment for a young man.

Buddy, his wife, Marlyn, and family of four, like their new home.

Congratulations Roland and Catherine. All of us at the Center know how proud you are to have such a wonderful son.

WAVELAND

The Senior Citizens of Waveland Association Inc. will hold its regular meeting Monday, March 12, at 10 a.m. at the Civic Center, Coleman Avenue.

It will be the "Shades O' Green" meeting in honor of St. Patrick's Day.

President Pere Cabibi urges all members, "please attend," as plans will be discussed for the Spring Luncheon.

Any members interested in team bowling will be able to sign up for bowling at this meeting. There will be a door-prize of a floral piece donated by the Security Savings and Loan Association, Bay St. Louis office.

CLOSING

I would like to share a thought with you:

Without the cool wet feel of the rain, how could we ever really appreciate the good warm feel of the sun?

Without feeling the dark depths of sadness - Oh, what a loss - for then we would not understand the lofty feeling of joy.

Without Death's knowledge, we would have had to miss Life.

Even without the cancerous emotions of bigotry and hate, we could never know or need feel Love.

Without Love, we would not be able to know God, for He is all warmth, joy, life, and most of all, God is Love.

Conservation group seeks regulations

The National Wildlife Federation has called on the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency to tighten the regulations the EPA proposed last fall for the control of poisonous chemicals and other toxic substances.

The new rules, NWF said, should place a higher priority on safety than on "aleged benefits" of new compounds.

The NWF recommendations were contained in a nine-page study of EPA's Proposed Implementation Approach to Toxic Substances Control, which, the citizens conservation group said, showed "no sense of urgency."

The EPA guidelines, NWF complained, placed too much emphasis on "information gathering...procedures, methods, mechanisms and approaches" and not enough on "corrective and preventive action."

EPA rules, when finally adopted, should require manufacturers of new substances to pass EPA-designed safety tests, the conservation group said. Otherwise, NWF pointed out, the burden of proving that the compound is risky would fall on EPA and the EPA would be able to prevent the manufacture of a potentially harmful substance only by going to court.

Unless EPA requires pretesting of a new substance, said NWF, the nation could again suffer such costly environmental disasters as the Kepone contamination of the James River and Chesapeake Bay in Virginia, and the PCB contamination of the Hudson River and the Great Lakes.

The NWF comments concluded: "EPA puts too much emphasis on the potential cost of testing — borne by the manufacturer — and too little on the cost of illness, death, and environmental degradation — borne by all of us."

In another action, NWF has petitioned EPA to design rules to regulate all solid waste disposal in the nation's wetlands.

According to the NWF petition, EPA should clearly establish that solid waste and garbage disposal in wetlands are subject to requiremens of the Clean Water Act, which prohibit the unauthorized discharge of any pollutant into the waters of the U.S.

"EPA's failure to meet its statuatory obligation in his regard has resulted in the unauthorized, unregulated dumping of solid waste (including garbage) into environmentally important wetlands areas," said NWF in its petition.

Such dumping fills in the wetlands, thus destroying them, and often results in serious, polluting runoff problems, NWF added.

As an example of the scope of the problem, the petition pointed out that there are an "estimated 15 wetland disposal sites in the New Orleans area alone" and that each year, many thousands of acres of wetlands are lost to garbage disposal in the vicinity of New Orleans.

Decorating Tips

By Linda Forrest, Designer
Hardwood Institute

DECORATING FOR YOU— THE FURNITURE YOU LIVE WITH

So you've just won the lottery, gotten your yearly bonus or your tax refund, and you want to spend it all in one place. Now, you say to yourself, is the time to redecorate! But go slowly. Instead of rushing out to rid yourself of that extra cash, think about who you're decorating your home for. Is it the latest "in" style? Do you want your living room to look just like that page in the magazine you read last week? Should it look like that grouping in the store you were in yesterday?

According to many professional designers, you'll get best results by following your own taste and inclinations. Suggestions are great, whether they're from designers, magazines or stores. They can give you lots of creative ideas on what looks good in your rooms and where. Or on how to solve that impossible space problem. But don't lose sight of who's doing the buying and what it's for. It's for you and you have to live with it.

Think about what you need and want. What are the sizes you have to deal with? Is your lifestyle formal or casual? Do you prefer elegant antique reproductions or the casual informality of character marked woods—woods with nature's trademarks, such as wormholes or knots, left in? Do you prefer the rich dark tones of cherry mahogany and walnut to the lighter shades of ash, birch or maple? Or the solidity of the natural oak look?

The furniture in your home should be functional, flexible and proportionate to the space you have. It should offer easy maintenance for today's busy lifestyles. By choosing hardwood furniture, you get all these benefits. And hardwood comes in every style, shape and size imaginable, and adds warmth to your decor.

Hardwood is a good deal in another way, too. It's virtually indestructible! Your hardwood furniture will last forever if you want it to. It can be repaired, refinished and lived with, and best of all, it shows two things about you—you have common sense and good taste.

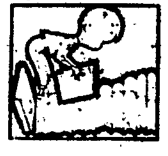
Book Review



'GETTING STRONG' A Women's Guide to Realizing Her Physical Potential'-

PUBLISHED BY BANTAM BOOKS MARCH 1

No matter how fit any woman thinks she is, there is a good chance that she is still lacking in overall bodily strength.

Kathryn Lance used to be one of those women. The author of Running for Health and Beauty and one of America's best known runners, Kathryn was able to run six miles a day, yet she continued to have trouble carrying her suitcase through airports, prying open stuck food jars and excelling in sports that require strength.

Out of her dilemma came GETTING STRONG: A Woman's Guide to Realizing Her Physical Potential.

A March Bantam release, GETTING STRONG contains a unique, medically sound strength and stamina building program.

Lance demonstrates, through clear, step-by-step instructions, how women can strengthen themselves for specific activities as well as for sports such as tennis, softball, skiing, swimming, volleyball and gymnastics.

The program involves only 45 minutes a week, and household items such as tomato juice cans and plastic bottles may be substituted for actual weights.

Originally published in hardcover by Bobbs-Merrill, GETTING STRONG was an Alternate Selection of the Literary Guild and has been excerpted in Glamour, Family Circle, and Woman's Day, and will be featured in Good Housekeeping's "Beauty Book" for spring-summer.

Upon publication in hardcover the New York Times said GETTING STRONG is "terrific for women who wat to get stronger, physically and psychologically," while James Fixx, author of The Complete Book of Running, felt that is was "certain to change the lives of tens of thousands of women - and their men. I felt stronger just reading it. Kathryn Lance has done it again!"

GETTING STRONG is also filled with practical advice on figure reshaping, weight control and posture.

Illustrated with detailed drawings and charts, GETTING STRONG has an extensive section relating the weight-training program to specific activities and sports, and a chapter on the best way to push, pull and lift household objects.

Kathryn Lance, a former television soap opera writer, has written numerous articles, stories and educational guides for journals and textbooks.

Her first book, RUNNING FOR HEALTH AND BEAUTY, has over 300,000 copies in Bantam print. She lives in New York and is currently at work on her third book.

County seeks court stay in state basketball dispute

By RICH ADAMS

Hancock County School Superintendent Terry Randolph filed a formal protest Monday against a decision which awarded the Class A State Basketball Championship to the Stone County Tomcats Saturday.

Randolph said Wednesday he filed a protest in Jackson with the assistant executive director of the Mississippi High School Activities Association (MHSAA), and added that a similar protest was filed in the form of a lawsuit with the Hinds County Chancery Court.

The action stems from an official's call at the close of the championship finals between the Tomcats and the Hancock North Central Hawks.

The Hawks were trailing 57-56 with three seconds remaining in the game when Barry Arcement failed to score on a one-and-one foul shot.

HNC's Moses Hill grabbed the rebound and misfired a tip-in, which was in turn rebounded by Zachary Ladner who made a last minute jump shot which went through the hoop.

Officials, after some hesitation, ruled Ladner's shot did not leave his hands before the buzzer had sounded, and proclaimed the Tomcats as the winners.

Randolph went to Jackson Monday and filed the protest with the MHSAA.

"Upon presentation of the protest to the assistant director, he informed me that the association does not provide for a protest of that nature," Randolph said Wednesday.

"They (the MHSAA) follow American Federation of High School rules that do not provide for such protests," he added.

"Nothing may result from the protest...there is nothing in the MHSAA hadbook which states a school's right to appeal under such circumstances," Randolph explained.

The superintendent added that a suit filed in Chancery Court Wednesday will "hopefully" be heard prior to the overall state championship playoffs Friday.

"The school board voted unanimously to take legal action at Monday's meeting," Randolph said.

"We filed court action to prohibit any further play to determine the overall state champion until a ruling is declared as to the suit filed this morning," he continued.

"Hopefully, the suit will be heard prior to the overall state championship playoffs March 9. What the suit is asking is that the games be delayed until there is a court ruling on the matter," he added.

Randolph said after viewing a video taped account of the contest, he has determined three "human errors" which he will protest.

"After reviewing (the video tape), it is clearly seen that regulation time had not expired and that the ball had already been released and in the basket when official time expired," Randolph contested.

"The second of my objections is that the timekeeper is the official who has the authority to determine if time had officially expired. He did not do this before consulting the official scorer, who has no authority to determine whether time had expired or not," the superintendent continued.

"My third objection is that the referee, and not the umpire, has to make the final decision. The referee, not the umpire, must consult with the timekeeper and ultimately make the final decision as the whether the basket was good and time expired," Randolph said.

"The referee did not consult and report to the timekeeper. In fact, from my observation, immediately following the game, the referee consulted with the timekeeper, and after asking him twice as to whether time expired, the timekeeper hesitated for quite some time before he shook his head indicating the goal should not be counted because time had expired," he continued.

"It is my opinion that the referee, not the timekeeper, could actually determine whether time had officially expired and that the timekeeper just guessed and his guess was wrong for Hancock North Cenral," Randolph added.

Randolph said the decision to continue with next week's overall state champion tournament prior to a court ruling is "up to the judge."

"This is too critical...it has been a long, hard season. If we won, we deserve the title. If we lost, we lost," Randolph said.

In reviewing the film, there is no doubt in my mind that victory was in our hands," he added.

Coach Ladner protests decision

By RICH ADAMS

Hancock County School officials are filing a formal protest against the decision which gave the Stone County Tomcats a one-point victory over the Hancock North Central Hawks Saturday night in the Class A state finals in Jackson.

The Hawks were defeated 57-56, a final tip in of a Moses Hill rebound by Zachary Ladner going through the hoop after time had expired, according to officials at the game.

With three seconds remaining on the clock, Barry Arcement misfired the opening shot on a one-and-one foul attempt. The ball was rebounded by Hill, who also missed.

Ladner took the rebound and attempted a fade-away tip in, which went through the hoop.

Officials, following a lengthy period of discussion, ruled the shot came after time had expired and declared the Stone cagers the victors.

Fans from both sections of the bleachers joined in on some court action themselves, a melee occuring between Stone County and Hancock fans in mid-court.

Hancock Head Coach Roland Ladner said Superintendent Terry Randolph is protesting the decision in an attempt to have the Hawks named state champs.

"After 29 seasons as a coach, I think it is time I protested," Ladner said Tuesday.

Ladner said the timekeeper was "obviously not sure" as to whether the shot was good, and claims the official scorer, who has no say in the decision, ruled the shot as being too late.

"He (the timekeeper) took

March gobbler hunting may be state's best

When biologists at the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission get excited about an upcoming turkey season, then hunters might want to get ready for one of the best seasons ever. More birds may be harvested this year than in any previous hunt.

With a statewide population of turkeys numbering around 150,000 shooters can look for good hunting on many state Game and Fish Commission wildlife areas and some National Forest Service land. The chances for a gobbler are traditionally better in south Mississippi since agricultural and timber practices usually favor more birds.

"Overall, Mississippi has one of the best turkey populations it has ever had," Wildlife Coordinator Edsel Cliburn said. "Although some sections of the state have very few birds, it's because hunters have not particularly wanted them."

One key that hunters can use in picking a likely gobbler spot this year 's timber management practices and the type habitat available forthe birds, Cliburn said.

"In some hill counties of the state, a lot of prime timber has been cut, robbing turkeys of good mast trees and habitat. Some timber companies are going to one-species management in large 500 acre blocks, and this is not the best for birds," Cliburn explained.

"In south Mississippi hunters can look for likely areas where there are improved pastures utilizing bahaia, bermuda or ryegrass. These areas make for good nesting and brood habitat."

Over 35,000 resident hunters spend in excess of 212,000 days afield each year hunting turkeys, one recent survey showed. According to the Game and Fish Commission, nearly 10,000 birds were taken in 1978, with 853 harvested on wildlife management areas. The top five and their kills included Wolf River (180), Red Creek (142), Bucatunna (125), Chickasawhay (104), and Homochitto (51).

It is no secret that some parts of the state faced near drought conditions from about July through early winter. Asked if this has affected the turkey hatch or the overall population, Cliburn said no.

"Turkeys are smart and resourceful birds. They will find water in stagnant pools, creeks, streams and rivers. Being very hardy and wary birds, this has helped them survive and one reason we should have a very good hunting season."

The state's first turkey season gets underway March 24 through April 4, reopening April 6 and extending through April 29, 1979. The bag limit is one gobbler per day, two per season, but not more than three per license year.

This year there will be managed hunts on many wildlife management areas. For open areas and additional regulations on where to hunt in the state, write for the free brochure "Hunting In Mississippi" from the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission, I&E Department, P.O. Box 451, Jackson, Ms. 39205.

Non-residents may purchase a combination hunting-fishing license for $20 from sporting goods stores, conservation officers or the Game and Fish Commission office in Jackson.

Hunters will want to try these spots during the upcoming season:

Leaf River WMA in Perry County. Basically an upland pine site with roosting birds in mature pine timber and in the bay heads. Birds readily fly down into small wildlife clearings. These should be used in early morning to work wary toms. They can be used for still-hunting during the day.

Chickasawhay WMA in Jones, Wayne and Greene counties. Basically the same timber type as Leaf River area. Management here is more intensive for quail which in turns yields some good nesting and brood habitat types for hens and gobblers. This is a large area, so check in, get a map of the area, and ask the area manager for likely spots to try.

Bucatunna WMA in Clarke County. Majority of the lands here are leased from International Paper Company and not blocked out in large landholdings. The many rolling hills here support a good turkey population. Hunters listening on these peaks can locate gobbling birds in creek and branch bottoms. Pay attention to the lands adjacent to the Alabama line.

too much time to decide...at least 45 seconds. The rule book states, if the timekeeper is in doubt, he should not make the decision," Coach Ladner said.

"It blew my mind...the scorer crossed his hands, indicating the point was no good, and the referee then ruled the shot no good," he continued.

"Stone thought they had lost...there was too much time on the clock. I've seen teams take the ball all the way down court and score with one second remaining on the clock," he added.

Ladner said the Hawks played a "nervous" game in their one-point win over Tchula in the opening game of the tournament, and played a "perfect" game to defeat Booneville to enter the finals.

"Against Tchula, we couldn't shoot the ball. Hill saved the game for us-he was cool, and hit the basket," Ladner said.

"In the Booneville game, we played perfect...defense, shooting, man-to-man defense...everything was perfect," he continued.

"We did a good job on Stone County. We had a fine comeback game in the second half, and played fine defense," he added.

"They (Stone County) are a good, physical, ballclub. We just had more depth, better man-to-man coverage, and we can play 'catch-up' ball-they cannot," the coach said.

Ladner said he hopes for a Jackson Chancery Court decision which will halt the overall state finals until a champion is named by the judge.

Byron Ladner led the Hawk scoring with 13 points, followed by Steve Nunn's 12.

Alan Dedeaux, Hill, and Arcement were named to the All-Tournament contingent.

The Hawks ended the season with a 27-12 record.

PRJC completes spring training

"We beat the heck out of 'em," quipped Coach J.C. Arban after his Wildcats played their annual spring football game Tuesday at Dobie Holden Stadium on the Pearl River College campus. The statement expressed Arban's excitement about his offenses showing.

"I think we have the makings of a good football team," said Arban, "seems like everybody did a good job."

The 47 PRC players lineup divided into two closely even teams - Maroon and White. The two teams joined for an hour and a half of "Cat" mania with the White team winning 30-23 over the Maroon. This spring game ended the spring training workouts for the Wildcats.

"I'm well pleased with the way our spring went," said Arban. "I feel if the players will come back in the fall aand show some leadership, we could have a good football team."

"Our offense definitely looked better than I'd figured," Arban added. "As a rule, your defense generally is ahead of your offense, but both did a very capable job."

The two teams joined for almost an hour and a half of "Cat" mania with the White team winning 30-23 over the Maroon. This spring game ended the spring training workouts for the Wildcats.

"I'm well pleased with the way our spring went," said Arban. "I feel if the players will come back in the fall and show some leadership, we could have a good football team."

"Our offense definitely looked better than I'd figured," Arban added. "As a rule, your defense generally is ahead of your offense, but both did very capable jobs."

"Our quarterbacks looked pretty good, but they do need more work on reading the secondaries."

The head coach singled the likes of 4.6-40 sprinter Dennis Rogers from Prentiss.

"Ol' Dennis finally did what he was capable of and with his size (198 pounds) he's gonna really show us some stuff at tailback," he continued.

Arban noted his unit's main weaknesses center on the offensive and defensive lines, primarily at the tackle post slots.

"That's where we're going to have room for our incoming freshmen. I can't really say for sure. We'll just have to wait and see," he added. "As a whole, though, I think we had a pretty good 'little ol' Spring, even though we'd like to have gotten in four or five more days.

"But if the kids will take up where we left off come Fall, we're going to be a pretty decent football team."

In the intra-squad game, quarters were divided into plays, 35 per period between both teams. Arban said the contest lasted approximately one hour and thirty-five minutes.

No injuries were reported, with the exception of minor bruises, "which is expected," according to the head coach.

Game and Fish duck conference slated Mar. 17

What is being called one of Mississippi's worst duck hunting seasons in the last 10 years is history now. But it will be a main item of conversation at the first annual Mississippi Waterfowl Symposium slated for Jackson in mid-March.

Sponsored by the Mississippi Game and Fish Commission and a host of federal and private agencies, the conference will bring together noted waterfowl experts from around the country.

Discussion will center on how waterfowl seasons are set, waterfowl diseases, steel shot controversy, and how to attract waterfowl to farmland.

According to Game and Fish Commission Director Joe Stone, the conference will get underway at 9:00 a.m. on March 17, 1979 at Primos Northgate Convention Hall in Jackson.

There is no registration fee. The public, and especially all duck hunters, are encouraged to attend.

MSU hosts bear seminar

When was your last encounter with a bear? Or better yet, how well would you like to know them?

These questions and more will be answered on Friday, March 30 at Dorman Hall on the campus of Miss. State University when Lynn Rogers of Ely, Minn. discusses "Everybody Can Relate To A Bear."

Rogers, a Ph. D. employed by the USDA's Kawishiwi Field Lab, specializes in ecology and wildlife. He will be at MSU as part of the 1979 Southeast Wildlife Society's student conclace to be held March 30,31. Slides will be shown.

Anyone interested in attending should contact the MSU's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries, P.O. Drawer LW, Miss State, 39762 or call (601) 325-3133.

POISONOUS PLANTS

More than 100 species of poisonous plants are found in Mississippi, but most people don't know poison ivy from poison oak, says a University of Mississippi biology professor who has assembled a research collection of 53,000 plant specimens. For that reason Dr. Thomas Pullen has created an exhibit of 20 common poisonous plants from collections of the Ole Miss Herbarium, largest plant research center of its type in Mississippi. The exhibit is on display in The University of Mississippi Library Lobby through March 12.

USM grant deadline March 15

An estimated 80 percent of undergraduate students attending the University of Southern Mississippi this coming fall will be eligible for basic grants as a result of the Middle Income Student Assistance Act if they file the proper forms by Mar, 15.

President Carter signed the act last Nov. 1, providing assistance to more than 1.5 million new students in the U.S.

The legislation will not only increase the average Basic Grant award for current recipients, but will substantially expand the program to include students from families whose incomes are between $15,000 and $25,000.

A family of four with an income of $26,000, one child in college and one parent employed, may receive a grant of $200 next fall. In larger families where both parents are working and more than one child is attending college, the eligible family income level may range up to $40,000.

Another provision of the Act removes the $25,000 interest eligibility ceiling on the Federally Insured Student Loan Program.

Financial Aid Scholarship Applications are now available from high school counselors or on request from the USM Financial Aid Office, Southern Station, Box 5101, Hattiesburg, MS 39401, or by calling 266-4257.

IRS offers service to deaf taxpayers

The Internal Revenue Service is offering a special, free service to Mississippi's deaf and hearing-impaired taxpayers.

For the third year, IRS is answering tax questions over the same type of equipment that allows thousands of hearing-impaired people to communicate over telephones.

The units, known as TTY, enable persons with similar machines to transmit printed words through teletypewriters and electronic keyboards attached to ordinary telephones.

The IRS is the first federal agency to offer nationwide, toll-free TTY service to the hearing-impaired.

Delta State established as MCAT administrator

Delta State University has been established as a center for the administration of the new Medical College Admission Test (MCAT), according to Mrs. Mary Alice Cates, assistant to the director of counseling and testing.

"The American College and Testing Program (ACT) informed us last week that Delta State will be listed for testing on April 28 and September 15, 1979. Candidates requesting DSU as a testing center should indicate on their registration forms code number 2190 which is the number given by ACT to DSU," Mrs. Cates said.

Registration materials for the two tests to be administered at Delta State are now available.

"Previously students taking the MCAT had to drive to Oxford or Jackson, however, with the establishment of Delta State as a test center a great deal of the travel will be eliminated," Mrs. Cates said.

For more information about the Medical College Admission Test, contact Mrs. Cates, P.O. Box 3303, Delta State University, Cleveland, MS, 38733, or phone 843-5377.

Vo-tech students to compete in Plymouth National contest

Students in the auto mechanics class at Pearl River Junior College, Hancock County Vo-Tech Center, are looking for trouble, according to Al Bourgeois, Director.

Parents shouldn't be concerned, however. The school has officially entered the Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest, an annual competition which recognizes the nation's outstanding high school student mechanics and honors the best of them with more than $250,000 in scholarships and prizes.

These contests are conducted in two phases: a written test, which will be conducted at various locations throughout the state on March 19, 1979, and a mechanical competition, which will be held May 8, 1979, in Jackson, Ms.

Students must achieve a high score on the written test to qualify for the mechanical contest. There, they are paired off in teams and assigned new Plymouth cars, all with identical malfunctions deliberately installed. Teams race the clock and each other to restore their cars to proper operating conditions.

State champions win expense-paid trips to the National Finals at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, June 17-20. The contest brings together teams from all 50 states to match their knowledge and technical dexterity against each other.

At the National Finals, $21,500 in scholarships are awarded to the top ten teams, including $5,000 to the first-place finishers. The national champs also will be awarded expense-paid trips to Washington, D.C. and San Francisco, where they will compete against teams from Mexico and Canada for the North American title.

During the year, the U.S. Champions also will make appearances on behalf of Chrysler-Plymouth and its dealers to encourage students with mechanical aptitude to enter the challenging field of automotive service.

Since its inception in 1949, the Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest has awarded 455 scholarships worth almost $500,000. During that time, more than 28,000 participating students have been placed in full or part-time jobs as auto mechanics. Each year, about two-thirds of the entrants are offered jobs in the automobile business.

The National Association of Secondary School Principals has placed the Trouble Shooting program on its approved list of National Contests and Activities.

Pre-health scholarships available

The medical alumni of Mississippi State University have announced the creation of two scholarships for students majoring in pre-health fields, particularly premedicine and predentistry.

"These scholarships, in the amount of $1,000 each, are renewable, provided the student maintains the appropriate quality-point-average," said Dr. John R. Gilbert, chairman of MSU's premedical committee.

Interested students should forward a copy of their high school transcript, a copy of their ACT scores and a letter of recommendation from the high school principal or guidance counselor to the Premedical Committee, Drawer MA, Mississippi State, Miss. 39762.

For additional information, contact Gilbert at the above address or telephone 325-4404 (toll-free 1-800-222-1810, ext. 4404).

Historian recalls first trip to the big city

Due to the great inconveniences of travel, and the great amount of time consumed in going even short distances away from home back before the railroad came through in 1884, also due to the shortage of money with many, most people living in this area had never been to any city.

Now we go into New Orleans in a matter of minutes but it would take days to make the trip 80 to 100 years ago.

It would take a hole day to go from the Picayune area to Gainesville. After spending the night in Gainesville it would take another day to get to New Orleans by steamboat, the only transportation available. After spending a day, or more, there, it would take another two days to get back home.

When the railroad came through, many people looked forward with great anticipation to visiting the big city. Since few people had ever been to a city of any size, they were unfamiliar with city ways and customs.

Many stories were gleefully told by old-timers about country boys going to town for the first time.

Uncle Van Stockstill said that on his first trip to New Orleans about 1880 he gave a waiter his order of ham and eggs for breakfast. The waiter yelled back to the cook, "one country," meaning of course that this was the standard order for country people.

Another tale, which I doubt is true but was told with delight, was of the country boy who had been directed to a certain location in New Orleans with this instruction: "When you get off the train, go across the street and catch a street car."

He crossed over to the street car track in the middle of the block. When the street car came by he raced with it to try to catch it, but was thrown sprawling on the ground. The motorman stopped the car, came back and asked the man, "Why didn't you wait until I stopped?"

The man replied, "Well, they told me I'd have to catch it."

And here is another one: when the bellboy held out his hand for a tip, the man shook hands with him.

Most of the old tales, in one guise or another, are well known to all, but the story of the country boy full of soup is, I believe, original.

As it was told to me, a young fellow who grew up in this general area had heard about the fine restaurants in the French Quarter in New Orleans.

He had heard men tell of the exotic foods, and the sparkling drinks. More than anything else this young man wanted to visit those famed restaurants and experience the supreme pleasure of dining in them.

He saved his money until the day came when he had enough to make his long-planned, and long-dreamed about trip to the far famed great city. He caught the old time fast train No. 41 early in the morning and arrived in New Orleans around 8 a.m.

He had had no breakfast and was hungry. He walked up the street, all eyes, taking in the sights, but especially looking for one of the eating places he had heard so much about. He had not gone far when he saw the name of a restaurant he recognized.

He went in and was ushered to a table. The waiter handed him a menu. He took a look at it but did not understand a word of it - it was printed in French, or at least in words he did not understand or know the meaning of, such as the word consomme.

Our young man had regularly read the big city papers and popular magazines in which there were often stories of country "rubes" of "greenhorns" who were the butts of many jokes.

He had firmly made up his mind to appear sauve and wordly-wise.

He nonchalanty looked over the menu trying to give the impression he was considering what to order. Finally, he pointed to a certain item and said, "Gimme that there." The waiter asked if he wanted anything else and he airily said, "No."

As he waited, his mouth watered in anticipation of some appetizing world-famous dish. Sonner than expected, the waiter appeared with a bowl of soup and some crackers.

He ate the soup with great relish as it was good, and he was hungry. He sat expectantly waiting for more food. All his previous experience was with country restaurants and hotels where regular meals were served, with soup served first. It had never occurred to him that he had only ordered soup.

Soon the waiter appeared and asked him what else he would have. He then realized that in giving his unknown order, he had asked only for soup.

He turned to the second page of the menu, and trying to appear again as if studying it, he pointed at random to another item, saying, "Gimme that there."

Feeling sure that having gone way over the menu, some delectable dish would soon be forthcoming, the young man sat day dreaming with visions of a well-cooked steak with all the trimmings, or possible a sea food feast such as he had read about.

To his startled surprise, the waiter soon appeared and set before him a large bowl of a different color and different kind of soup. For a moment, he was plainly confused. He had eaten heartily of the first bowl of soup, and wanted no more, but as he looked at it, the aroma smelled good and he proceeded to eat the soup with pleasure.

When he had finished this second soup, the waiter again placed the menu before him and asked him if he would have anything else.

He turned to the third page and, taking his time as if seriously deliberating what to order, he went about half way down to be real sure this time to get away from soup. In what he meant to be an offhand way he pointed to a line and said, "Gimme that there."

While the two servings of soup had blunted his keen appetite, he still felt the need of more substantial food. Again he dreamily speculated on what tasty and attractive food would be set before him.

At this point, I hesitate to go further with this story it sounds so fantastic, so ridiculous, so incredible that I am afraid no one is going to believe me, but it happened again - he got a third bowl of soup.

I would never have believed it myself if the man who had this unusual experience had not sworn to me he was telling the truth.

With this third serving of soup, our country boy was flabbergasted! He sat there for a time to regain his composure.

He was by now so full of soup that he had no appetitie for any more food, however as he looked at it, he noted that it was a heavier soup - more like a gumbo and it smelled good even in his soup-saturated condition. He dawdled around with the soup, eating a little bit of it, but mostly going through the motions.

When the waiter again appeared, he asked for his bill. The waiter placed before the young man a small bowl of water. In the country eating places, no such courtesy was ever before extended to him.

He was not thirsty but since the waiter had been thoughtful enough to place the water before him, he drank it. As this good man told it, he was now so full of soup that he felt lazy and sleepy.

He made his way back to the depot and caught the next train home.

No, this country boy was not me, but I'll admit that it could have been.

USM renovates Hardy Hall

Renovation of Hardy Hall on the Gulf Park Campus of the University of Southern Mississippi is a $750,000 item in the University's total legislation package.

The total $26.4 million package includes $23.1 million for general support, $1.7 million to equip the new technology building on the Hattiesburg campus, $500,000 for the purchase of land, $750,000 for the Hardy Hall, and $346,000 for a Mississippi Polymer Institute.

Also in the package is a request for pre-planning funds for a Health, Physical Education and Recreation Building.

General support funds for USM's regional campuses are part of the total $23.1 million general support request.

In the total 1979 general support request by the Board ofTrustees of State Institutions of Higher Learning a total of $4.5 million has been requested for regional campus programs at eight universities.

This request is an increase over the previous year by 117.82 percent. The amount of funds allocated to each regional campus in Mississippi is determined by the credit hour production of the enrolled students.

"The degree programs offered by USM on the Coast have increased to 40 and we feel this is a significant impact," said Dr. Shelby Thames, Vice President for Administration and Regional Campuses.

Chief of nursing retires after 40 year career

Grace Ferguson, who had been Bureau Chief of Public Health Nursing since 1975, retired from the Mississippi State Board of Health on January 31, 1979, after 40 years of service.

She began her career in public health as a field advisory nurse in Hattiesburg where she served as a consultant to nurses in county health departments throughout four districts in the state.

Miss Ferguson, who was reared in Rankin County, received her degree in nursing from St. Mary's School of Nursing in Evansville, Indiana.

She later did one year of study at Vanderbilt University and then received her B.A. from Western Reserve University in Cleveland, Ohio. She obtained her Master's in Public Health from the University of Michigan.

According to Miss Ferguson, she became interested in public health while she was still in nursing school.

"While I was a student, I spent time with nurses from the Visiting Nurses' Association and the city health department as part of my training," said Ferguson.

"I also had an extension course in public health nursing which was offered by the University of Indiana. The instructor of that course really impressed me with her ideas on the importance of preventive health care. Working in the field of public health sounded like an interesting and exciting career so when I came home on vacation, I went by the State Board of Health and applied for a job," she added.

According to Miss Ferguson, nursing itself has not changed much since she graduated from nursing school.

"Because of technology and the invention of new drugs, the methods a nurse will use may be different now, but the way a nurse relates to her patient is still the same," said Miss Ferguson. "Nurses are trained to be the sane caring, sympathetic people that they were when I was in school."

She added that the Bureau of Public Health Nursing has not changed much either during her employment with the State Board of Health. According to Miss Ferguson the Bureau of Public Health Nursing has always been involved in recruiting well-prepared and dedicated nurses to work with different State Board of Health Programs.

However she commented that she thinks there need to be better orientation and supervision provided for the nurses.

"Most of the nurses we hire are graduates of a two or three year program who haven't had any experience in community nursing," said Miss Ferguson. "I wish that we could get more nurses who have had training in public health nursing before they come to work for us. A nurse working in the health department has to assume more responsibility than one working in the hospital because there isn't always a physician available to supervise her. Because of this, we need people who have had enough training that they will feel secure when making professional judgements."

Following her retirement, Miss Ferguson will continue to serve as a part-time consultant in public health nursing. Other than that, she said her plans for the future include doing whatever she wants to do which on some days may mean doing absolutely nothing.

Educational Secretary confrence slated March 11

The Spring Conference of the Mississippi Association of Educational Secretaries will be held at the Jackson Hilton Hotel, Jackson on March 11-13, 1979.

On Monday, March 12, a general session will officially open the conference. Following this program, workshops will be held in three hour (or two one-and-one-half segments) with the morning sessions being repeated in the afternoon to allow the participants to attend more than one workshop during the day.

Topics include parliamentary procedure, communications, public relations, relationship between the secretary's home and office environment, lifestyle profile, and special interest workshops on affiliations and PSP guidelines.

All educational office personnel are invited to participate in the workshop sessions.

On Tuesday, March 13, a MAES business meeting will be conducted with the annual spring luncheon being held at twelve noon. Officers for the 1979-80 year will be installed as part of the luncheon activities.

The State Educational Administrator of the Year and the State Educational Secretary of the Year will also be honored at this time.

Chosen as this year's Administrator of the Year is Dr. Charles E. Holladay, State Superintendent of Education, Jackson.

Mrs. Ethel Bond, Secretary to the President of Mississippi Gulf Coast Junior College, Perkinston, has been selected as Secretary of the Year. Many educational administrators will be in attendance at the luncheon as well as the MAES members.

The MAES officers to be installed for the coming year are: President-Edna Drewery, The Northeast Mississippi Junior College, Booneville; President-Elect-Rosemary Chandler, Meridian Public Schools, Meridian; Vice-President-Hester Crews, University of Southern Mississippi, Hattiesburg; Secretary-Pat White, Drew Public Schools, Drew; Treasurer-Jeanette Graham, Greenville Public Schools, Greenville; Member-At-Large-Dorothy Stamps, Jackson State University, Jackson; Member-At-Large-Virgie Malone, Pascagoula Separate School District, Pascagoula; and Immediate Past President-Patricia Huggins, University of Mississippi, Oxford.

Several hundred educational office personnel from throughout the State ae expected to convene in Jackson for this annual spring meeting of MAES.

For information concerning registration for the conference contact Mrs. Jeanette Graham, Greenville Public Schools, P.O. Box 749, Greenville, MS.

Food service deadline Mar. 15

Food service management companies which plan to act as vendors for USDA's 1979 summer food service program for children in Mississippi must register with the state on or before March 15.

The summer food program provides nutritious meals to children from areas of economic need at public or private nonprofit, nonresidential institutions or residential camps during the summer months.

Regulations were adopted last year to assure that companies providing food for the summer program are reputable and able to meet the terms of their contracts.

Under USDA's rules, food service management companies must provide states at the time of registration, with a tailed information on their operation for the past two years.

Companies wanting information on the summer food program or applications for registration in Mississippi should contact: Mr. John H. Walker, Assistant Director, Administration and Finance, State Department of Education, Jackson, Mississippi 39205. Telephone: (601) 354-6916.

Q. What does $500 million buy in the Gulf?
A. A major offshore pipeline system.

It happened last summer.

From a large gas producing area 200 miles off the Texas coast, a major offshore natural gas transmission system recently was completed to the Louisiana coast.

This marine pipeline, with a 42-inch diameter main trunk, has an initial capacity of nearly one billion cubic feet daily, and an ultimate daily capacity of two billion cubic feet.

This half-billion dollar pipeline network, called the High Island Offshore System (HIOS), was built by a partnership of five natural gas companies serving different parts of the nation. And because United Gas was one of the moving forces in its creation, a large share of this new gas will be delivered to the Gulf South economy.

Otherwise it would have gone elsewhere.
